

Campus for Infosys Ltd

The client brief was simply to create the world's most sustainable office building. This probably is one of India's largest IT companies located in Nagpur, at the heart of India but more importantly it sits in a SEZ (Special Economic zone) of India. The design brief marked a paradigm shift in office design for the client, Infosys, where at the outset, they designed all glass structures to prove to their (largely American) clients, that Infosys' capabilities were on par with their expectations. Having more than proven their worth over the last few decades, Infosys was now looking to being highly sustainable.

That was their brief. We took it further by challenging ourselves to design the World's most sustainable office building for 20,000 people- to be Net Zero on Energy, Water and Waste to landfill.
